Nat'l School Segregation Plan Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court flatly rejected today a plea by Gov. Claude Kirk of Florida that it set national standards for school desegregation.

Kirk's plea, which was framed in an attempted suit against the 49 other states and Secretary Robert H. Finch of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, was turned back unanimously.

The unsigned decision, speaking for all of the eight justices, said Kirk had failed to "state a claim against any of the defendants warranting the exercise of the original jurisdiction of the court."

Only the Supreme Court, under the Constitution, can judge disputes between states. The court rejected Kirk's move without waiting for responses from the other states or from Finch.

The court also declined to speed up the normal timetable — up to 60 days, for such responses.

The court, on Jan. 14, ordered officials in two Florida counties and in 12 other districts in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi to desegregate their public schools by Feb. 1 and adopt a "unitary" system of education.

Kirk said it would be impossible for Florida to meet the deadline. Therefore he asked permission to sue the 49 other states and Finch since the other states would continue to receive a "proportionate allocation of tax funds derived from the federal government" while Florida was "denied an allocation of its proportionate share."

Youths Write Own Changes in Draft Lottery

WASHINGTON (AP) — A West Virginia congressman who is too old to worry about the draft is letting young men in his state write their own amendments to the Selective Service law.

Rep. John Slack says he will introduce any bill the young people come up with and see they have a chance to testify at draft hearings before the House Armed Services Committee this spring.

The 54-year-old Democrat and World War II veteran says his plan is designed for youth who want to become involved but don't know how.

To carry out his idea, Slack has asked presidents of four colleges in his district to "place this matter before an appropriate campus group and request that a bill be written to meet their convictions and requirements."

He said any suitable campus group desiring to take the initiative could do the job so long as it is generally representative of college-age interests.

"I would hope, however, that they would sound out the views of draft-age persons in the community who do not attend college," Slack said.

Once a bill is drafted, it will be introduced under Slack's name, a supporting statement inserted in the Congressional Record and a request for a hearing placed before the Armed Services Committee. Slack said he would arrange for appearance of the youthful witnesses.

Negro Official Would Stop Trying to Move Negroes From Ghettos

By WILLIAM BARTON

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the top-ranking blacks in the Nixon administration says the government should stop emphasizing programs to move Negroes out of the ghettos.

"After all, what's so great about white folks that you want to live next to them," said Benjamin F. Holman in an interview. "It's condescending and paternalistic."

Holman, the South Carolina-born, New Jersey-reared director of the Justice Department's Community Relations Service, said he has been accused of heresy to the civil rights cause since he first expounded his views last year.

And he insisted he doesn't favor any form of retrenchment in the legal battle against segregation or inequality.

"Where integration will work, I'm all for it," Holman said.

Therefore, Holman said, it is more important for the nation to redirect its priorities to improve the quality of life, especially education, in the inner cities.

"What we need," he said, "is to uplift the masses by redirecting our resources to provide jobs, education, decent housing and health facilities for those who are forced to live, out of economic necessity, in our inner cities."

Holman suggested the nation mistakenly assumed that he was the inmate who set fire to a mattress in the isolation block.

Of the 23 witnesses called in the first two days of the hearing, 21 were convicts, including 17 who testified Tuesday.

One of the nonconvict witnesses was James V. Bennett, former director of the federal Bureau of Prisons, who testified Monday that the trusty system had no correctional value, led to corruption, was designed to make prisons profitable state operations and had been abandoned in all states but Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The other nonconvict witness was Robert Sarver, state correction commissioner, who testified Tuesday that he did not have enough free-world employees in the financially pressed prisons to protect inmates from harm.

At times, Sarver said, only two nonconvicts are on duty at Cummins Prison Farm, where 1,300 prisoners are housed. The rest of the prison staff is made up of convicts, including about 300 who are designated as trusties and carry weapons that range from pistols to rifles.

The inmate witnesses related a vast array of alleged incidents of mistreatment and unwholesome conditions. Samples:

— Thomas M. Hilderbrand, 22, of West Memphis testified that a trusty named Booker T. McDonald forced him at gunpoint to leave the isolation building at night so other trusty guards could kill him as an escapee. Hilderbrand was shot through his left side when a trusty discovered him outside the building, he said.

— Garner S. Autry, 18, of Little Rock testified that three weeks after he entered Cummins "six or seven" men forced him at knifepoint to submit to a gang rape in a barracks while a "floor walker," an inmate assigned to prevent such incidents, did nothing.

— "I don't believe you'll ever have more money than you need for highways," said former Gov. Ben Laney of Mississippi.

— "You'd better play with your dollars carefully until you get done with what you've got to do."

— Mrs. Dorothy Stuck of Marked Tree argued that to include the provision in the constitution would make the Highway Commission a "political kingdom" unresponsive to the people.

— "Let's not insult them," she said. "Since we are not running for re-election, we should be able to resist the special interest groups."

— Earlier, George Campbell of Little Rock got the convention to write into the provision an amendment that would also authorize the use of highway taxes for the prevention or reduction of air pollution.

— Booth's Words

— "Tell mother I did it for my country" were the last recorded words of John Wilkes Booth, in defense of his assassination of President Abraham Lincoln.

— Heated debate preceded the convention's decision to make the provision an initiated act. The biggest fight was over whether to give it constitutional status by including it in the main body of the proposed new document.

— Delegate Robert Meriwether of Conway, who opposed such a move, said the proposed action would be "contemptuous" of past and future legislatures.

— "Does this imply the General Assembly has misused the power given to it in the past?" Meriwether asked. "Are we implying that the General Assembly in the future will misuse these tax funds?"

— "Are we saying our wisdom today is far greater than that of the General Assemblies in 1980, 1990 or 2,000. I am against perpetual earmarking of funds."

— Including the provision in the main document would tend to remove the state Highway Commission further "from the hands of the people," he said. The commission, which now enjoys constitutional status, would continue to have it under the convention's proposed constitution.

— Richard Mays of El Dorado favored including the provision in the constitution to assure that the state continues to "adequately fund the highway program in the foreseeable future."

— "When you commit a certain amount of money to finance highways, that is not retrogressive but progressive," he said.

The Unlucky Expert looked even more hapless than usual, so we didn't even try to evade him. Let's listen to his tale of woe.

"It was the last rubber and I was actually a trifle ahead. We were both vulnerable and I actually picked up an opening bid. Unfortunately, I was in the fourth seat and all I could do was listen while my opponents contracted for game. My partner led the five of clubs and I topped dummy's king with my ace. I led back the four of trumps."

"So far, so good," was our comment. "What happened next?"

"South held the trick with the 10 and led the 10 of clubs. I won with the queen and played the ace and nine of trumps. South won, led the king of diamonds, a diamond to the ace and a third diamond, which he ruffed. Now he led the six of spades. My partner played low and, after considerable thought, South played dummy's 10. Then he ruffed another diamond with his last trump, cashed one high spade and made the last two tricks with dummy's ace of spades and a fifth diamond."

"Imagine my partner not having the brains to go up with the jack of spades and block out that extra entry to dummy!"

"We can imagine it, all right, and wonder if many people looking at the North and West hands only would have been able to visualize the exact situation and put up that jack of spades. Of course, our friend was unlucky. South's play of the 10 of spades from dummy is a standard play but one that is seldom made. He would have looked so silly if East had produced the spade jack and set him two tricks."

Television and Radio

NEW YORK AP — CBS news department's program.

"The Day They Had to Close the Schools," was timely and consisted of a long if not particularly deep look at the money troubles of the U.S. educational system.

The program Tuesday night focused on Fremont, Ohio, which was faced with closing the community schools after a school tax levy was voted down.

Narrator Daniel Schorr pinpointed the problem of "explosive population and exploding taxpayers" in noting the large number of recent school bond issues rejected by voters.

Fremont's story was rather heartening. It rallied around in the emergency, finally voting the levy and paying its property taxes in advance to accumulate immediate funds.

Almost glossed over was the reason behind the resistance of many of the voters—steadily increased property taxes and, as one woman snapped, a feeling that no efforts were made to economize.

Schorr noted that 10 Ohio communities did suspend classes because of a lack of funds. The program concluded with interviews with public officials on methods of handling the education emergency. Generally, efforts are in the direction of taking the major burden off local property tax and having states pay the school tax.

Those children of all ages who love the circus—even the televised kind—had their annual sampling Tuesday night of the Greatest Show on Earth, with the addition of instant replays in slow motion.

The NBC special showing highlights of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus had all the usual treats—high flying acts, elephants, big cats, clowns, acrobats, dancing bears and colorful processions. And cameramen used that familiar football technique to show, in slow motion, a double flip off a trapeze, a woman jumping from a 30-foot high platform into the arms of her partners and two human cannon balls flying across the auditorium. It provided an interesting new dimension.

Network executives are beginning to play their annual chess game in which the entertainment series are pawns. Programming heads probably know now which current programs are unlikely to survive another summer. Between 20 and 30 shows die each year, to be replaced in September.

Most midseason replacements have a few more weeks to be tested before their Nielsen ratings decide their fates. It appears however, that CBS's "Haw," an early midseason arrival, is doing so well it probably will be renewed for a full season.

Programs whose futures appear to be dubious include CBS's "To Rome with Love" and "Get Smart"; NBC's "I Dream of Jeannie" and "Bracken's World," and just about every show on ABC's Friday night schedule.

The earthworm has no eyes, but has on each segment a pair of spots which are sensitive to light.

SAPE TOWN, South Africa (P) — American Negro tennis star Arthur Ashe today was refused a visa to compete in the South African Open Tennis Championships in March.

A government statement said, however, he will be allowed to play in South Africa as a member of a Davis Cup team.

Sports Minister Frank Warner, announcing the government's ban on Ashe as an individual but not as a member of a team, said Ashe's statements "from time to time showed a general antagonism" toward South Africa.

The visa refusal, which had been expected, is considered more likely to lead to South Africa's ouster from the Davis Cup competition this year.

An emergency meeting of the International Ice Hockey Federation to discuss the possibility of postponing the Davis Cup competition has been called for March 23 in London to consider a proposal that a committee be appointed to study the situation and annually and given power to renege on an entry by any country if it considered the Davis Cup competition is endangered.

Last year Poland and Czechoslovakia refused to play South Africa and tennis authorities fear a disruption again this year. The Davis Cup European zone competition if South Africa is allowed to play.

$5.5 Million Needed to Keep Pilots

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Five and one-half million dollars — cold, hard cash in the bank — is what appears to be necessary to keep the Seattle Pilots baseball club from ignominiously leaving town after just one year there.

American League owners scheduled a second day of meetings here today, hoping to hear that a group of Seattle businessmen will be able to come up with that sum.

Those businessmen, though, will be in nearby San Francisco, running up a phone bill in a last, desperate attempt to get the money and keep the Pilots from moving to Dallas-Fort Worth or Milwaukee, whose representatives are on hand to move in for the kill if the Seattle bid fails.

It is clear the league owners want to keep the team in Seattle, if only to prevent a lawsuit that Mayor Wes Uhlman has threatened if they leave. But money was the problem when the meetings here started and it is the problem today.

The only real development after 10½ hours of meetings Tuesday was the reduction of the price of the Pilots.

In October the league approved a sale price of $10.3 million and the club was to be sold from Cleveland businessman William Daley to a group headed by Seattle businessmen Fred Danz and Edward Carlson.

But then it was learned that a $3.5 million bank loan given to the original ownership would come due if the club was sold. Danz and Carlson couldn't pay it and the present crisis arose. Tuesday, Daley's group agreed to accept $9 million for the club, saying it was foregoing all profit in doing so.

But it was difficult to see how this would solve the problem of the $3.5 million bank loan.

In addition, the new owners will need at least $2 million to run the club next year, meaning at least $5.5 million is needed right away regardless of whatever long-term payment deal might be worked out with Daley.

And making the matter more difficult for Carlson and Danz is the time factor. With spring training less than a month away, the league must come to a final decision soon, though perhaps not at the present meetings.

"I would think they would have about a week," said Ewing Kauffman, Kansas City Royals owner who is chairman of a four-man committee considering the problem.

Carlson was hopeful he could find the necessary financing, even though he had not been able to do so in his attempts since August.

Almost lost in the shuffle was a proposal made earlier in the day by a group headed by Carlson and Danz that includes Washington Gov. Daniel J. Evans and Seattle Mayor Wes Uhlman as well as other political figures.

They suggested turning the Pilots into a nonprofit civic organization with all profits to go to social, cultural and educational groups.

This idea appears not to have been taken seriously by the owners and Carlson said he was not surprised at this. League President Joe Cronin sounded skeptical from the start and he indicated the owners felt the same way.

Bobby Hull Is Hockey Player of Decade

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Dynamic Bobby Hull, the Chicago Black Hawks' record-shattering triggerman, was named hockey's Player of the Decade today in an Associated Press poll of the nation's sports writers and sportscasters.

Hull, who revived Chicago's National Hockey League fortunes in the booming '60s and topped the magic 50-goal mark four times in the process, outdistanced venerable Gordie Howe of the Detroit Red Wings in a two-man race for the award.

The balding Golden Jet, at 31 at 12-year NHL veteran, received 436½ votes, to 145½ for the 41-year-old Howe, a super star in the ice game for more than two decades.

Hull and Howe spreadeagled the field in the balloting. Bobby Orr, Boston's brilliant young defenseman, finished a distant third with 19 votes. Center Stan Mikita, Hull's Chicago teammate since 1959, was fourth with seven.

Goalie Jacques Plante, a 13-year standout with Montreal, New York and St. Louis, and centers Jean Beliveau of Montreal and Phil Esposito of Boston each received two votes.

Goalie Lorne "Gump" Worsley and right wing Bernie "Boom Boom" Geoffrion, both of Montreal and New York, picked up one apiece.

Hull, who grew up in the hamlet of Pointe Anne, Ont., and still makes his home nearby, on a 500-acre cattle ranch, came to the Black Hawks in 1957 without prior professional exposure.

The husky, blond left wing scored 13 goals in his first NHL season and 18 in his second. In 10 campaigns since then, he has averaged 44—with a high of 58 for an all-time record last year.

The modest musclemen, an explosive skater whose booming slap shot has been clocked at 118 miles per hour, won three league scoring titles and was named the NHL's Most Valuable Player twice, in 1964-65 and 65-66.

In the latter season, he gunned in 54 goals, set up 43 more and captured the scoring crown, the Hart Trophy as MVP and the Lady Byng Trophy for gentlemanly play.

His coach, Billy Reay, calls Hull "the greatest player I've ever seen. In my time, I played against Maurice Richard and Gordie Howe, and I say Hull is better than either of them. He can skate faster and better than either one and he shoots harder."

"His shot is like a piece of lead," testifies Plante, a seven-time winner of the Vezina Trophy as the league's premier goaltender. "You have to see it coming toward you to believe it. He has the hardest shot I ever saw."

Hull, more concerned with his three sons, Bobby Jr., 9, Blake, 8, and Brett, 6, than scoring records, has been threatening to pack in his skates since 1960. Involved in contract disputes with the Hawks' management in each of the past several years, he held out through the club's first 11 games last fall.

But he has fired 16 goals since returning to the Chicago line-up and the Hawks have rebounded from a horrendous start to move into playoff contention.

Howe, the slope-shouldered living legend from Floral, Sask., who has sparked for the Red Wings since 1946, is the NHL's all-time scoring leader. He went into his 24th season with 732 goals—314 of them in the '60s—and 954 assists, and has added 27 scoring points thus far.

Appearing in his 21st All-Star game last week, the big right wing potted his 10th All-Star goal on a pass from Hull.

Nicklaus Is Man to Beat at San Diego

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, golf's third millionaire and the most feared competitor on the pro tour, loomed as the man to beat in the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament. He always has to be ranked among the favorites—particularly so when, as now, he has his awesome game in harness. "He plays a different part of the golf course," a fellow pro once said of Nicklaus' booming drives. He's generally regarded as the longest hitter on the tour. Some rank tall Tom Weiskopf with him.

Says New Men At Prison Live in Fear

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Convicts pictured Arkansas' penitentiary system Monday as a place where new arrivals are indoctrinated by fear in a prison society in which "the big dog eats the little dog."

Wayne Abraham, a former professional boxer serving a sentence for parole violation, said that among the first persons a new inmate meets is a fellow convict who takes his "freeworld" clothes and sells them to other prisoners and offers to "help" the new arrival for valuables such as watches and rings.

"If a man comes to the institution with qualities, he'll lose them in the course of this indoctrination — this fear," Abraham said.

"It's dog eat dog at the penitentiary," said Milton Sullivan, another convict. "The big dog eats the little dog."

Abraham and Sullivan testified on the first day of a U.S. District Court hearing before Judge J. Smith Henley on a series of inmate complaints against the Arkansas prison system—Cummins and Tucker Prison Farms.

The inmates' complaints charge that the prison food is inadequate, that sanitation and health facilities are unfit for humans and that the trusty guard system under which gun-carrying convicts guard other inmates does not adequately protect their lives.

Henley has indicated that he will rule on the constitutionality of the trusty guard system.

Abraham and Sullivan were among six inmates who, although not a party to the suit against the prisons, volunteered to testify Monday. Jerry Augartner and Karl Miller, two of the six, testified that they had been threatened with harm if they took the witness stand.

The inmates told Henley that convicts had easy access to liquor and drugs, that prison food was lacking in quantity and quality, that homosexuality was a problem and that prisoners bought and sold jobs. Four of the inmates testified that they paid trusties up to $40 for prison jobs.

Sullivan, a former Arkansas State University basketball player and who served briefly as a Memphis policeman and is now serving 10 years for burglary and grand larceny, said demand for liquor drove prices up over the Christmas holidays.

He said a pint of "freeworld" whiskey went up from $10 to $15 and a half-pint from $5 to $10 and that "home brew," which normally sold for $4 a gallon, increased to $6.

Sullivan testified that pills of drugs sold for 50 cents to $5.

He also said that during the Christmas period inmates who worked in the prison mail room took for themselves "contraband" articles that were meant as gifts for other inmates. He said a free-world warden also took a set of expensive toiletries home with him.

Michael J. Gamble, serving three years for armed robbery, said trusties took free-world clothing of newly arrived inmates and sold them to other convicts.

Asked if homosexuality was a problem, Sullivan said, "There are situations there where men live like husband and wife." He said he once got into a fight defending a 16-year-old boy whom an "older convict" had tried to rape.

Miller testified about homosexuality in the prison, food, barracks and lot of the peanut barn.

All of the inmates testified that prisoners went without various clothing, including shoes, jackets, socks and sweat shirts, because they were issued none.

Joe Michael Hendricks, 24, serving 26 years for assault with intent to rape, said that recently inmates were forced to work in a field in which water from rains was over their boots.

Hendricks also said that inmates at Cummins mostly ate vegetables and that the little meat they received was "stringy."

He said that on Sundays inmates usually were served chicken, but that they normally got only one piece.

Miller testified that two inmates regularly brought coffee to the fields and that a "captain Hawkins" and Pete Haynes, a long-line rider, had instructed the inmates to buy coffee or get "written up" for not picking enough cotton.

Miller said he would estimate that half of the homosexuality or more were forced acts and the others voluntary.

More Blacks in Army's Special Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—Blacks make up more than 40 percent of the men brought in to the armed services under a special manpower program to help previously unqualified recruits reach the military's education and health standards.

A Pentagon report just compiled found the men who went through the program performed well in building up to regular military standards.

Blacks now comprise slightly more than 9 percent of the men entering the military through regular volunteer enlistments or the draft.

The Pentagon report covers three years of Project 100,000, launched by former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara as a means of tapping more manpower for the Vietnam war.

Under the project, individuals referred to as "New Standards" men receive special educational help or medical assistance in order to become qualified for duty.

In testimony before the Senate subcommittee on General Services Administration, head Robert L. Kunzig said 12 cars already use the new, low-emission fuel with 70 more to be converted in the next two months.

"I emphasize to the committee that I hope to do this at little or no cost to the federal government," Kunzig's statement said.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., is considering a bill providing government purchase only of those automobiles certified as giving off the lowest possible pollution.

The initial GSA experiment was begun last October at a government motor pool in Los Angeles.

Kunzig said 24 autos were used in all, 12 operated with a natural gas converter, and 12 similar vehicles operated on regular gasoline for comparison.

Natural Gas Auto Fuel Plan Works

WASHINGTON (AP)—Trials with a natural gas auto fuel have been so successful in eliminating pollution that plans are under way to convert as many as 1,000 government cars to the new system by the end of the year, Congress was told today.

In testimony prepared for the Senate commerce subcommittee hearing, General Services Administration head Robert L. Kunzig said 12 cars already use the new, low-emission fuel with 70 more to be converted in the next two months.

"I emphasize to the committee that I hope to do this at little or no cost to the federal government," Kunzig's statement said.

Israel Head Welcomes Arms From U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli Premier Golda Meir has welcomed President Nixon's pledge to maintain the arms balance in the Middle East by selling weapons to Israel, but the Arab press denounced it and called for reprisals against U.S. interests in the Middle East.

Mrs. Meir in a communique said the President's message to a conference of Jewish leaders in Washington Sunday "gives eloquent expression to the United States' friendship for Israel."

Even though Israel is "deeply concerned at certain United States diplomatic initiatives," Nixon said his government was "maintaining careful watch on the relative strength of the forces (in the Middle East), and we will not hesitate to provide arms to friendly states as the need arises."

The GSA spokesman said the message was "the most hostile U.S. attitude yet toward the Arabs."

The semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram said the statement appeared to be "a prelude for providing the Israeli militarists with more Skyhawk and Phantom warplanes than the 75 originally requested last year."

Students Bring in Orchestra

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Parents of pupils at the Opal B. Robinson Elementary School had long desired to bring the Brass Quintet of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra to this suburban city. The quintet was anxious to oblige. But the parents lacked funds, and the musicians' union required that they be paid.

So, for 126 books of trading stamps donated by parents, the quintet performed three times Monday, starting with a concert at 9:15 a.m. The final offering was a capsule history of music. One book of stamps will redeem about $3 worth of merchandise.

Senility Not Incurable
LOS ANGELES (AP)—A University of Washington professor says symptoms of senility such as forgetfulness and confusion, once considered incurable, can be markedly relieved by treatment with oxygen in a high pressure chamber.

Dr. Peter Winfree, associate professor of anesthesiology, told a medical conference at Good Samaritan Hospital that patients tested showed definite improvement in mental function after they were subjected to intermittent oxygen pressure in hyperbaric chambers.

He said one aspect of the experiment still under study is how long the benefits last. But he said the treatment can be repeated safely at intervals.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Practically everything about professional auto racing smacks of bigness. It is the largest nonbetting spectator sport in the country. It has the country's highest-paid athletes. It has industry support in excess of $300 million a year, and the figure is growing.

Pro auto racing also combines the economic pretensions of pro football with the business savvy of a sandlot softball league in Wounded Knee, S.D. Racing is a big mess.

The business of racing is as complicated as the machinations of a multibillion-dollar conglomerate in the throes of a proxy fight. Only the sport has no comprehension of the rules.

Top of the racing heap is still the Indianapolis 500, a tradition of more than 50 years standing and long operated as a closed shop by Tony Hulman, unquestionably the sport's most knowledgeable promoter. Unfortunately, his knowledge and experience isn't passed around too much.

Then there's Bill France, big daddy of the NASCAR circuit who almost alone made stock car racing the South's biggest sport. Although a shrewd operator, France hasn't been able to spread his southern success nationwide.

The Sports Car Club of America, which sanctions

most races than all other sanctioning bodies combined (with the possible exception of the National Hot Rod Assn.), after years of sawing and arguing "amateur" vs. "professional," last year created a professional racing division and gave it to Jim Kaser, a bright manager and perhaps a power to be reckoned with.

The U.S. Auto Club, which sanctions Indianapolis and other championship trail racing, is finally showing signs of life after many years of amazing senility. USAC's new executive director, Bill Smythe, is quietly competent.

At the same time professional football moves together for bigger and better things, racing's sanctioning bodies move farther apart. Personality differences and the eye for the big buck are splintering the sport.

Add to this bubbling mixture the track owners and promoters. Lawrence Lo-Patin, a Detroit real estate man and financier of sorts, has put together a combine called American Raceways, Inc., which includes superplants near Detroit, Houston, Atlanta and, maybe, Riverside, Calif. Lo-Patin is also building a track in southern New Jersey.

And on the West Coast, the $25-million Ontario Motor Speedway is nearing completion. This particular operation was put together by David Lockton, a bright young Indianapolis lawyer, with financial help from Louis Marx, Jr., the toy tycoon, and Dan Lukin of Donaldson, Lukin & Jenrette, one of Wall Street's top investment houses.

Israel Planes Knock Out Egypt Camps

By Michael Gross
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli planes attacked two Egyptian army camps in the Nile Delta south of Cairo today, the Israeli military command announced.

The raiding jets hit the El-Mandi army camp, six miles south of Cairo, and a base at Dahshur, eight miles south of Helwan, a spokesman said.

He reported all the planes returned safely.

It was Israel's sixth strike into the delta region in six weeks.

An Egyptian military spokesman said the Israeli jets raided Mandi and Dahshur, on the west bank of the Nile about 12 miles south of Cairo. He reported three people were killed and 12 wounded.

Heavy anti-aircraft fire was heard in the Egyptian capital for about 15 minutes, and the electric supply was cut for about 20 minutes in many parts of the city, Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said. The raid was made by four Israeli jets.

The Israeli command also took a representative of the foreign press, Bill Seaman of the American Broadcasting Co., to the Israeli military headquarters in the Sinai desert, at Nahal Dikla, to check on Egypt's claim that its commandos had destroyed "most of the encampment and equipment" and killed a large number of Israeli soldiers in a raid early Tuesday.

Seamans said he found one shell hole inside the camp's barbed wire but "saw no indication of any other military action having taken place." He said life at the base appeared normal, no one seemed to have been injured and no special precautions were being taken.

The Israeli command had announced that "some improvised bazooka rockets" had been fired at Nahal Dikla and "caused no damage or casualties whatsoever."

In Paris, Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas said if Libya sends to the Israeli front any of the Mirage jets it is buying

More Money for Working Poor Hits a Snag

By Edmond LeBreton
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee has run up against a stubborn snag in its consideration of President Nixon's proposal to supplement the income of the "working poor," some members say.

The problem: Many of those who are employed, but earning less than their family requirements, have casual and temporary jobs. As a result, their earned income varies widely from month to month, or even day to day.

The Nixon plan contemplates supplements to insure a $2,400 minimum yearly income for a family of four, for example. But how to calculate the amount needed to supplement a constantly fluctuating income?

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., said the problem was pointed up in testimony by the directors of an Office of Economic Opportunity experiment in New Jersey, a sort of small-scale pilot version of the administration proposal.

Monthly interviews to establish the current family income would be necessary, Ullman said the experiment directors advised the committee.

"This would be an administrative nightmare, when you consider they are talking of a new case load of millions," Ullman said. "The proposal simply hasn't been thought through."

The committee has turned for the present from the working poor proposal to a study of an employment referral system.

Racing on Bumpy Track

SPORT OF THE '70s? Ontario Motor Speedway in California will be the showplace of motor racing when it opens in the fall. But is the racing establishment ready for it?

By Bob Cochnar
NEA Automotive Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Practically everything about professional auto racing smacks of bigness. It is the largest nonbetting spectator sport in the country. It has the country's highest-paid athletes. It has industry support in excess of $300 million a year, and the figure is growing.

most races than all other sanctioning bodies combined (with the possible exception of the National Hot Rod Assn.), after years of sawing and arguing "amateur" vs. "professional," last year created a professional racing division and gave it to Jim Kaser, a bright manager and perhaps a power to be reckoned with.

The U.S. Auto Club, which sanctions Indianapolis and other championship trail racing, is finally showing signs of life after many years of amazing senility. USAC's new executive director, Bill Smythe, is quietly competent.

At the same time professional football moves together for bigger and better things, racing's sanctioning bodies move farther apart. Personality differences and the eye for the big buck are splintering the sport.

Add to this bubbling mixture the track owners and promoters. Lawrence Lo-Patin, a Detroit real estate man and financier of sorts, has put together a combine called American Raceways, Inc., which includes superplants near Detroit, Houston, Atlanta and, maybe, Riverside, Calif. Lo-Patin is also building a track in southern New Jersey.

And on the West Coast, the $25-million Ontario Motor Speedway is nearing completion. This particular operation was put together by David Lockton, a bright young Indianapolis lawyer, with financial help from Louis Marx, Jr., the toy tycoon, and Dan Lukin of Donaldson, Lukin & Jenrette, one of Wall Street's top investment houses.

Unfortunately for the track owners (who can do more for the sport than any other organization or person, except for television), tracks aren't much good without racing events. And the dates for the events are held by the sanctioning bodies, NASCAR, SCCA and USAC.

Lockton at Ontario, for example, has spent months convincing the racing establishment that the California supertrack actually was going to exist, despite the backing of the above-reproach Donaldson, Lukin & Jenrette. And Larry Lo-Patin, who may have moved too far too fast, is currently on the blacklists of the three sanctioning bodies.

Drivers aren't especially pleased with the situation either. The young, struggling Professional Drivers Assn. formed last year by NASCAR drivers led by Richard Petty, has given Bill France fits.

For the last several years, Les Richter, one of racing's strong men, has been saying that motor racing is the "sport of the '70s." Maybe, but not so long as the so-called Establishment persists in rejecting reason and unity and follows the course of self-serving stupidity and chaos. It is currently doing a fine job of the latter.

Richter may now be reconsidering his optimism. Last year he was hired by Lo-Patin to direct his track operations, subsequently fired by Lo-Patin and now occupies a post of questionable certainty as boss of Riverside, which is fighting with Lo-Patin, who is presumed to own it. "Confusing." It's just beginning.

Europe's Great Drivers Enter Daytona Race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two of Europe's great names in auto racing, Ferrari and Porsche, begin jockeying for top starting positions today in the first round of practice and time trials for this weekend's 24 Hours of Daytona.

The two foreign team entries — five new Ferrari 512s and three streamlined Porsche 917s — have by far the fastest cars in an entry list that also includes an assortment of machinery from the United States and six other countries.

It appeared that only one other factory team, Matra of France, had any chance of equalling or bettering Vic Elford's Daytona course speed record of 122.246 miles per hour.

Two rounds of practice were scheduled today, with each to go for two hours.

The official timing clock will be on each of the cars as it runs over the 3.81-mile Daytona track and road course. Positions on Saturday's 3 p.m. starting grid will be determined during the three days of practice.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — When his daughter Sandy was small, Hilford Singleton gave her 20 cents each Sunday.

One dime was for the Sunday School collection plate; the other was for her own use.

One day, she dropped one of the coins and it rolled through a sidewalk grating.

"Oh, God," said the child reverently. "There went your dime."

GE Strike Settlement Seems Near

NEW YORK (AP) — An eight-hour meeting between union leaders in the 93-day-old strike against the General Electric Co. and the chief federal mediator has increased speculation that the parties are close to a tentative settlement.

J. Curtis Counts, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, met Tuesday with key officials representing the 12 striking unions. He also conferred separately with company officials.

The issues blocking agreement were not known because of a news blackout agreed to by the parties. Neither side would comment on the status of the talks.

In Washington, Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz told the Washington Post that "the parties have come much closer together" although, he added, "there are still some things to be resolved."

The last company wage offer publicly disclosed was a proposal on Dec. 6 for an immediate 20 cents increase in the average hourly wage of $3.25. The proposal would provide a 3 per cent increase in the second and third years of a three-year pact, plus a clause providing for possible increases of an additional 2 per cent annually, based on cost-of-living increases.

The strike by 130,000 employees has crippled GE production in 135 cities.

The union negotiators have been led by leaders of two unions which bargain nationally, the AFL-CIO International Union of Electrical Workers and the Independent United Electrical Workers.

The strikers' original demand was for a 90 cents an hour wage increase over 30 months, plus up to 50 cents additional an hour for special skills.

Weather Is Slated to Get Cooler

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Warm, spring-like, weather is expected to continue through today in Arkansas but cooler temperatures are on the way.

A strong low pressure system that was centered over Kansas early today is expected to move into Arkansas tonight or early Thursday bringing showers and cooler weather, the Weather Bureau said.

A sharp change to colder temperatures is expected over the state late tonight as the low pressure system and an associated frontal system moves into the area.

The Weather Bureau says some shower activity could possibly begin early tonight as gusty southerly winds bring warm moist air into the state.

Highs Tuesday ranged from 65 at Jonesboro to 77 at El Dorado.

An Identity Crisis Can Leave a Person Pitifully Indecisive

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Have you had an identity crisis lately?

Well, if not then you don't belong with the real swinging set.

An identity crisis occurs when someone who knows for sure, or thought he did, who or what he was suddenly becomes a stranger to himself. The affliction may become as common as these confusing times as the common cold.

When you are gripped by an identity crisis, you become pitifully indecisive.

In the morning you stare in the mirror at the face you are shaving and question, "Is that really me, or some impostor?"

Has this been the real me all along?

Although undergoing an identity crisis is personally devastating, it is somewhat like having a

Carswell Vows Not to Accept Fees and Will Tell Financial Deals

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge G. Harold Carswell says he never has and never will accept fees for off-the-bench activities and if confirmed as a Supreme Court justice would willingly disclose his financial affairs.

The federal appeals court judge was closely questioned about his views of judicial ethics during Tuesday's opening Senate Judiciary Committee hearings into his high court nomination.

Carswell, who was called back for another round of questioning today, told the senators he "definitely" thought the same standards should apply to Supreme Court justice as to all other federal judges.

At the start of the hearings the 50-year-old southerner, confirmed by the Senate last June as a judge on the 5th U.S. Court of Appeals, swore he is no racist.

"I have no notions, secretive, open or otherwise, of racial superiority," he testified in repudiating a 1948 political speech supporting white supremacy.

Carswell said he wouldn't expect the committee to vote for his confirmation if the members thought he harbored ideas of that kind.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., in raising questions of judicial ethics, told Carswell he wanted to know what his standards would be "if your nomination is confirmed, which I think it will be."

Bayh, who led the fight against Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., President Nixon's first nominee for the Supreme Court post, later told newsmen his comment didn't necessarily mean he was going to vote for Carswell.

Carswell, who lives in Tallahassee, Fla., was nominated by Nixon Jan. 19 for the Supreme Court seat vacated by Abe Fortas last May.

Haynsworth, rejected by the Senate 55 to 45 last November, not only had stiff labor and civil rights opposition but also was pictured by Bayh and others as giving an appearance of impropriety because of stock transactions while on the bench.

Carswell, also opposed by labor and civil rights groups, testified he owns no stocks or bonds and told the committee that "certainly a judge should not sit in a case where there is an appearance of impropriety."

When asked about a country club in Tallahassee that took over a public golf course and kept it segregated after a 1955 Supreme Court decision requiring desegregation of public recreation facilities, Carswell said he took no part in its affairs.

An ordinance was approved which abandons the Alley in Block 12 of Rufins Addition. The Alley has never been used. The Planning and Zoning Commission found that it would not be of any further benefit to the public.

Another ordinance was passed rezoning two pieces of land on North Hazel Street from R-2, Residential, to C-2, Commercial, to permit commercial development that is being planned on North Hazel.

The Board approved the renewal of a lease to Mr. Claud Sutton on 41 acres of land on Rocky Mount Road owned by the City. Mr. Sutton has had the land leased for the past 3 years at an annual lease of $281.

The lease was extended at the same price. Mr. Sutton uses the land for grazing and was preparing to do fertilizing but didn't want to spend the money with less than a 3 year lease. The land was purchased for industrial development, and the lease provides that the City can take possession of the property any time it is needed for industrial use.

No Decision on Lunar New Year Truce

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today that "in principle, and like every year, there will be a truce" for the Tet festival of the lunar new year on Feb. 6.

"However," Thieu said in a communique, "the government has not decided because there still is time to make the decision, and furthermore, the government still needs to observe the situation."

The Viet Cong already has announced a four-day cease-fire beginning Feb. 5.

Allied sources said that Thieu probably will declare a 24-hour cease-fire but will keep the South Vietnamese army on a full alert. A spokesman for the U.S. Command said American forces will observe the government's cease-fire as they have in past holiday periods.

Sordid Tales Come Out in Prison Hearing

By BILL SIMMONS
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A convicted told a U.S. District Court hearing Tuesday that gruel given to prisoners in isolation cells at an Arkansas prison farm was so repugnant that he avoided it until hunger drove him to kill and eat a rat.

Otis Taylor, 19, of West Memphis said he and a cellmate caught and consumed the rodent about six months ago while he was confined in the isolation building at Tucker Prison Farm for an infraction of prison rules.

He said gruel contained such foreign objects as cigarettes, match stems, cockroaches, bits of paper and rocks.

The testimony was given before Judge J. Smith Henley in the second day of a hearing on more than 20 complaints filed with the court by state prison inmates who alleged that prison conditions and practices are inhumane and intolerable.

Henley, who struck down corporal punishment in the prisons in 1968, consolidated the inmate petitions for a comprehensive review of the prisons.

He has said he will consider whether the use of trustys — convicts who are given guns and put on guard duty — is constitutional. Attorneys for the inmates also have asked him to rule on whether forced, uncompensated labor in prison farm fields constitutes involuntary servitude.

Taylor, serving a five-year sentence for burglary and grand larceny, said he had been in isolation at Tucker 16 times for a total of about 130 days.

During a 40-day stretch, trustys kept him naked in his cell, he said. He was stripped, Taylor said, because trustys growing stockpiles of new cars, General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. will lay off some assembly line workers and shorten work weeks during February.

GM officials announced Tuesday work schedules at 22 plants would be cut back, affecting 126,700 employees during February. The slowdown in production was being made to reflect market requirements, a spokesman said.

Chrysler announced indefinite layoffs of about 2,200 employees at four U.S. plants. Production rate at these facilities are to be reduced and one of two shifts is to be eliminated at the fourth.

The annual Arkansas Farmers Mutual Insurance meeting was held Tuesday at Marion Hotel in Little Rock and group from Hempstead and Nevada counties attended. Included were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ellis, Mr. and

Legislative Meet May Be March 2

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller gave legislators a peek at his special session spending proposals today and promised to outline his program in detail within a week.

In letters dated Monday and mailed Tuesday, the governor called on lawmakers to give him their suggestions on how the state should move to head off a financial crisis.

"Not in 13 years have we made a comprehensive adjustment in the base of our operating revenues," Rockefeller wrote. "These years have known unprecedented growth and unprecedented demand on the comparatively fixed resources of state government. It is mathematically unthinkable that we should not be in financial difficulty now."

The Supreme Court is up to full strength with President Nixon's appointment of G. Harrold Carswell (Senate confirmation pending) to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Justice Abe Fortas last May. Ouachita, Tech Still Tied for Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arkansas Tech, sparked by a record-setting performance by Paul Brown, and Ouachita swept to AIC basketball victories Tuesday night to remain tied for the Division A lead.

Brown hit 30 points to smash Tech's career scoring record as the Wonder Boys whipped Harding 111-84. Ouachita clipped Arkansas A&M 71-63 with the help of five free throws in the last 44 seconds.

In other AIC games, Southern State defeated winless Ozarks 85-63. Henderson crushed Hendrix 89-77 and Arkansas College disposed of State College of Arkansas 79-60.

In increasing his career production to 2,109 points, Brown surpassed the Tech record of 2,153 points set by Kenny Saylor in the early 1960s.

Brown had big help Tuesday night from Terry Hankton, who scored 30 points, and Tommy Shaw, who hit 24, as the Wonder Boys improved their AIC record to 10-1. Larry Olsen pumped in 36 points for Harding, which held Tech to a 53-53 halftime tie but couldn't solve the Wonder Boys' press and fast break in the second half.

Ouachita kept pace of Tech's AIC record with the help of the last-minute free throws and a cold streak by A&M in which the Boll Weevils failed to convert on seven trips down the court.

The Tigers led 35-33 at the half, but didn't go in front for good until Terry Reed hit a jumper with 10:40 remaining for a 53-51 lead. Reed's 13 points led Ouachita. Tommy Morrison scored 27 and Ricky Mobley 13 for A&M.

Al Flanagan pitched in 22 points as Southern State ran away from Ozarks, which has lost all its 15 games this season. The Muleiders built a 43-31 halftime lead and played reserves the last 10 minutes of the game.

Barry McMahon added 12 points to the Muleider attack. Ronnie Graham had 13 and Ronnie Denham 12 for Ozarks.

Henderson, the Division B leader with an 8-2 conference record, started slowly against Hendrix. The Reddies led 25-22 with about five minutes left in the first half, increased it to 44-30 at the half and built an 82-58 lead at one point.

Five Reddies hit in double figures, with Danny Davis and Mike Peterson each getting 18 points. Davis fired in 14 of his in the last half. Danny Thomas scored 16 for Hendrix.

StockMarket In 3-Year Low

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market fell to a new three-year low — as measured by the Dow Jones Industrial average — in slack trading Tuesday.

Many investors were reported on the sidelines, waiting for President Nixon's budget message Monday.

Meanwhile, there have been no news developments to spark stock buying, analysts noted, amid continued tight money and reports of lower 1969 corporate earnings.

The Dow lost 4.89 — about half a percent — to close at 763.99, its lowest closing level since Oct. 11, 1966.

said last week that he probably would have to break that promise.

Rockefeller's letter indicates that he is paying little attention to calls from individual legislators and from editorial writers of some newspapers that he give up the idea of a special session because it is clear that he can get no new taxes.

Rockefeller told legislators: "The essential issue before us, you and me, is not taxes. It is meeting obligations."

Along with fiscal information, Rockefeller sent lawmakers a list of the nonbudget matters which may be included in his special session call. He included a proposal to repeal the state's fair trade law covering liquor and wine prices although, as he pointed out, mention of the items now does not mean that they will be included, only that they are under discussion.

The key nonbudget proposal is for a change in the salary and classification act under which state employees are hired and paid. Rockefeller says that low salaries are hurting all state agencies and that this one matter alone would make a special session worthwhile.

The minor spending proposals to which Rockefeller affixed money figures included: Pollution Control Commission: $147,215 for additional personnel.

State Police: $45,000 a year to pay salaries of seven men needed to fully man a system of communications centers.

University Medical Center: $1,008,000 to add 123 beds. State training schools: $855,000 to set up an educational program.

Health Department: $368,000 to add nine employees in the meat inspection program. State Hospital: $400,000 to increase salaries.

Blind School: $260,000 for a classroom and library annex and a home economics cottage.

Law Enforcement Training Academy: $200,000 for a dormitory and gymnasium.

Adult Education: $30,000 to set up a program in the prisons.

Industrial Training: $250,000 to supplement an existing $240,000 appropriation for the 1969-71 biennium.

Although he gave no figures for aid to education, he said, as he did in a news conference last week, that he wanted to provide an additional $425 pay raise for each teacher. This, he revealed in the letter, would go with a $125 raise already budgeted to give teachers a total raise of $550 a year.

Rockefeller also mentioned a pressing need for prison reform. Although he set no money figure for prisons, he pointed out that a federal court is considering the legality of using trustys as guards and that a ruling may come before the session. If the system is declared unconstitutional, Arkansas will have no choice but to provide money for paid guards.

In discussing welfare, Rockefeller said he wanted to increase the minimum grant to a dependent child from $21 to $30 a month. He said he wanted to expand the food stamp program and to carry the Medicaid program to a point where it pays for prescription medicines for the indigent.

Most of the nonbudget items have been considered by the legislature before, specially the liquor law. This law sets a minimum markup at both wholesale and retail levels. Repeal has been suggested at each legislative session in the last decade, but the bills never got near to passage until last year. Some legislators thought fair trade repeal would have passed then if the bill had not come up so late in the session.

The nonbudget matters under consideration include:

- Legalizing use of voting machines for absentee voting.
- Establishing a public defender system.
- Enactment of a teacher tenure law.

- Creation of a Scenic Rivers Committee with authority to obtain scenic easements and restrict development on four rivers—the Buffalo, King, Mulberry and Eleven Point — and on Big Piney Creek.
- Setting up a merit system for state employees.

- Transferring control of the Tuberculosis Sanatorium from a separate board to the Health Department.
- Increasing the present 6 per cent limit on public bonds.

- Setting up a highway classification system.
- Creating a Council on Human Resources.

- Transferring control of cash funds from the various agencies to the treasurer.
- Removal of a 1 1/2 per cent charge assessed by the treasurer for handling funds of the State Police Pension System.

- Setting up a central data processing system.

Silent Screen Rules as Colt to Beat

NEW YORK (AP) — The wheel of fortune for the best 3-year-old thoroughbred of 1970 has stopped on Silent Screen. But it will spin a lot more before a champion is decided.

And it is the spinning from now until the middle of June that annually creates the greatest excitement in racing. For it is in this period that the top 3-year-olds prep for and compete in the Triple Crown races—the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Adding spice to the situation are the facts that some of them are not even known yet, being lightly raced or not raced at all as 2-year-olds; some of the best 2-year-olds might not run back to form; lesser 2-year-olds could show marked improvement; some could be injured.

But for now, Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Werblin's Silent Screen, a chestnut son of Prince John-Prayer Bell, rules as the colt to beat.

He was the 2-year-old champion and was given highweight of 128 pounds in the Jockey Club's Experimental Free Handicap.

Others to watch are Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' High Echelon, Herbert Allen's Forum, Charles Englehard's Prontanto, Hickory Tree Stable's Hagley, Wheatley Stable's Irish Castle and Brave Emperor, Raymond M. Curtis' My Dad George and Bud Brick Stable's Ring For Nuts.

Mrs. H.Y. Hoffman's Due by Night could surprise.

Silent Screen is the first New York-bred to be assigned highweight in the 36-year history of the Experimental Free Handicap. In an evaluation of the performances of the previous year's 2-year-olds,

Cites Reasons for So Many Plane Crashes

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force planes have been running out of gas and crashing and the top Air Force general says it looks to him like "a lack of professionalism and discipline." As a result, Gen. John D. Ryan, Air Force chief of staff, has cracked down with orders to tighten up on supervision.

"Recent accidents and incidents caused by fuel depletion indicate a lack of professionalism and discipline," Ryan said in a message to all major commands.

Fuel depletion is a euphemism for running out of gas.

Ryan said "these occurrences have included all models of aircraft from fighter to four-engine jet aircraft" and have occurred under conditions involving both visual and instrument flight conditions.

"Adequate operational supervision would have prevented the loss of these aircraft," Ryan said.

Air Force officers said Ryan appeared to be leveling criticism at base operations officers and squadron commanders, among others.

Ryan's statement came just over two weeks after his own son, Capt. John D. Ryan Jr., 29, was killed when his F4 fighter-bomber crashed on take off from Hamilton Air Force Base, Calif.

The plane has been recovered from San Pablo Bay, and there has been no official report on the cause of the crash.

Gen. Ryan made no reference to his son's death in the order.

According to the Air Force, there were 10 planes lost last year due to "fuel depletion."

The Air Force chief of staff told his commanders that recent spot effectiveness checks by the Air Force inspector general "have found common deficiencies highlighting a trend toward poor supervision and disregard regulations and technical orders."

Therefore, Ryan ordered his commanders to undertake a complete review of their procedures "to insure adequate flight planning and supervision and adherence to the requirements for adequate fuel reserves."

The Air National Guard passed on Ryan's message to its units, and added some advice of its own.

Movie Rating Program to Be Modified

By DICK BIESER

Associated Press Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After 15 months of what the film industry calls "gratifying success," its voluntary program of rating movies is being modified.

Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, said Tuesday one change was made because a survey had shown considerable confusion over the "M" rating — which meant a film was recommended for mature audiences only.

So that category is being dropped in favor of "GP." This means all ages may view the movie but that parental guidance or discretion is advised.

The other change raises the age limit for viewing films rated "R"—restricted category—without an accompanying parent or legal guardian from 16 to 17.

Both changes are effective March 1.

Observers said the boost in the age limit may represent an attempt to broaden the "R" rating to include racy but serious films heretofore relegated to the "X" category for adults only.

Valenti has said he originally intended the X to be a "Leper colony" for films of no artistic quality. But it hasn't worked out that way.

Two of the most successful and critically acclaimed films of 1969—"Midnight Cowboy" and "Medium Cool"—ended up in the X class.

Here is the new set of standards:

G—All ages admitted.

GP—All ages admitted, but parental discretion recommended.

R—Anyone under 17 must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian.

X—No one under 18 admitted.

A survey conducted by the National Association of Theater Owners showed that 5 out of 10 theaters queried used the ratings in their advertising.

Valenti was joined in his announcement by Eugene Picker, president of the theater owners group, and Muelo Podhorzer, a member of the governing board of the International Film Importers and Distributors of America.
